

Execution of Market Orders

Execution of Market Orders

This Execution of Market Orders document is imposed to attain the best possible result in executing and dealing with our clients' trades and market orders. In line with this procedure, you ensure that you have read our General Risk Disclosure upon your use or access to our services or products before trading with us.

You can initiate, modify, and view your orders on your trading platform with the Company. You may view the list of your orders and request an order cancellation through your account on our official website. You are responsible for monitoring your pending orders and ensuring that your orders are not duplicated before you initiate more trades to avoid overusing your funds.

As our client, you can execute your trades through a Market Order, which is an instant execution with the relevant bid or ask price of the asset or instrument you intend to trade. You can also place your trade as a Pending Order, which will be executed later and at the price you specify for that particular position. You may include a Stop Loss or a Take Profit amount for each position you execute. You understand and accept that you can only modify, cancel, and remove an order before it is executed. The execution venues available may change from time to time, and orders may be executed in the external market. We may also use one or more of the regulated markets, multilateral trading facilities, third-party affiliates of financial or investment firms, and firms with similar nature of business.

You acknowledge that we may disclose orders to authorized third parties or affiliates if deemed necessary.

You understand and accept that we consider various significant factors before executing an order, such as, without limitation, the price of the asset or instrument, cost of charges, speed of execution, market impact, specifications of the order, and the likelihood of execution and settlement. However, we do not consider the preceding factors as priority factors. Nevertheless, we aim to ensure that the instructions from our clients are executed accordingly.

All pending orders are considered Good 'till Cancelled ("GTC"), which means that all orders will be executed unless you request for cancellation of such order through your trading account. Any modification, cancellation, or removal will be considered invalid if an order is already executed or trading in the market.

You acknowledge and accept that cancellation of orders is only upon request, subject to our approval. Successful cancellation of orders may only be conducted during market hours, which means that conducting a cancellation of any order during market posting periods (pre-open, pre-close, and after-market) will not be available.

Risk Disclosure: Engaging in the trading of leveraged products carries substantial risk and may not be suitable for all individuals. The leverage offered in trading can amplify both potential gains and losses, and there is a substantial risk of losing more than your initial investment. Market conditions can change rapidly, and unexpected geopolitical events or economic data releases may cause volatile price movements, leading to unpredictable changes. Traders should carefully consider their risk tolerance, financial situation, and investment objectives before trading. Seek professional advice if necessary to ensure informed decision-making in the complex and dynamic financial environment.

We reserve the right to reject or cancel orders if it does not meet the significant factors or if deemed necessary. Some orders may be rejected or canceled, while some financial instruments and assets may be unavailable to you for various reasons, including your account type or due to the condition or status of your account. We may also reject an order if it has invalid specifications such as, but not limited to, its size, volume, and general market price quote. You understand and accept that we may also cancel or hold your order, which may result from but not limited to network interruption, system interruption, suspicious order, alleged or proven involvement in illegal financial activities, prohibited trading activities, or irregular market conditions.

Canceling orders on short notice involves a high level of risk and should be avoided as much as possible. We reserve the right to close or cancel a market order that was not executed due to insufficient volume or invalid specifications.

We verify each order specification accordingly to prevent any prohibited trading activities such as, but not limited to, scalping, system and platform manipulation, and the use of expert advisers ("EA").

Risk Disclosure: Engaging in the trading of leveraged products carries substantial risk and may not be suitable for all individuals. The leverage offered in trading can amplify both potential gains and losses, and there is a substantial risk of losing more than your initial investment. Market conditions can change rapidly, and unexpected geopolitical events or economic data releases may cause volatile price movements, leading to unpredictable changes. Traders should carefully consider their risk tolerance, financial situation, and investment objectives before trading. Seek professional advice if necessary to ensure informed decision-making in the complex and dynamic financial environment.

BankeFeX
Endless Possibilities.